RE: Revisions to the Circulation Loan Periods and Item Limits Policy

Please find attached recommended revisions to the Circulation Loan Periods and Item Limits policy. As the library has added new collections and grown others, the revisions proposed reflect these changes.

Three of the collections, (Try-It-Yourself [TIY] Kits, Yard Games and Board Games) are fairly new and still small, so the shortened loan periods are intended to give more patrons an opportunity to check them out. Please note that "Lawn Games" are now labelled "Yard Games."

The Wonder Books collection is a new addition. Procedures for the Book Club Kits are new and include a shortened loan period, to make the collection more accessible to patrons and facilitate self-service. The previous procedures demanded more staff attention as they required staff to manually set the due date.

CIRCULATION LOAN PERIODS AND ITEM LIMITS

MEMORANDUM

DATE: November 21, 2024

TO: Oshkosh Public Library Board of Trustees

FROM: Darryl Eschete, Library Director

RE: Third-Party Analysis of Finance/Business Interdependency of Library/City Organizations

On November 11, I met with City Manager Mark Rohloff, Finance Director Julie Calmes, Assistant Finance Director Hailey Palmquist and CPA Yvette Mueller of Clifton Larson Allen (CLA) to discuss a plan for a general analysis of the financial and business practices and interactions of the Oshkosh Public Library and City Finance. In that discussion, there was consensus that the following matters should be explored in depth:

1. Budget Allocation and Funding Sources

- Transparency in Fund Allocation: How funds are distributed and tracked for each entity, especially if there's shared funding, as in the case of the Stanhilber Parks-Library Trust.
- Funding Sources and Restrictions: Examination of funding streams, including public funds, grants, and private donations, ensuring compliance with usage restrictions.

2. Compliance with and Awareness of Legal and Regulatory Requirements

 Public Sector Financial Regulations: Ensuring continued adherence to and awareness of updated state and local government financial management regulations, especially those related to transparency and public accountability.

3. Inter-organizational Communication, Procedures and Decision-Making Processes

Decision-Making Protocols: Examination of formal communication channels and approval processes to verify that they are clear and conducive to collaboration, including handling of financial decision-making and scheduling of routine procedures, such as the paying of recurring bills.

4. Ongoing Expense Tracking and Shared Resource Management

 Tracking Expenses: Verification that expenses are not only accurately budgeted for, but correctly attributed and reconciled between the two organizations.

This analysis should give both the library and the City organization insights into their financial interdependencies and help identify areas for improved cooperation, efficiency, transparency, and compliance.

I and the City have been told to expect a proposal for service from CLA by the end of November.

Oshkosh Public Library Highlights

November 2024

- 1. Readers' Advisory Librarian Sarah Read attended her first Wisconsin Library Association convention, where she presented as part of the Notable Books Marathon panel. The panel features four librarians from across the state who each highlight a selection of books from various awards lists. The panel was well attended with more than 50 people in the audience, and Sarah has been asked to return to speak again next year. OPL is pleased that Sarah, who is herself an award-winning author, is recognized as a leader in her field!
- 2. The Library Development team and Darryl donned costumes and handed out candy and branded swag to trick-or-treaters and their families on Oct. 26 at the Oshkosh Farmer's Market. The library's new website and brand launch were hot topics for the day and visibility at the market underscored OPL's renewed commitment to serving our community and being a place to Spark Your Story.
- 3. OPL is hosting NaNoWriMo activities again this year, providing a venue and inspiration for writers working to write the first draft of a 50,000-word novel by the end of November. An introductory session and kickoff party led into events aimed at offering support, running down roadblocks and helping writers to cross the finish line as they pursue this lofty goal.
- 4. As a member of this year's Leadership Oshkosh class, Darryl will serve as an adjunct board member for Covey, an organization that offers respite and adult day programs. After meeting with Covey's CEO, Darryl jumped in to engage with clients and staff there, visiting the respite house on Nov. 14 to play a few folksy blues tunes. The singing library director easily connected with the group over a slide guitar and some Statesboro Blues.
- 5. OPL has fired up our Instagram account and is already attracting attention with content that reflects the library's newly-defined brand personality. Reels and images are showcasing patrons and staff; tying our resources to timely events and trends; and creating a vibe that is current, welcoming and fun. Content is resonating with followers and driving engagement that will only continue to build new connections with the Insta crowd.
- 6. The library teamed up with the Northeast Wisconsin section of the American Chemical Society to teach kids about photography and imaging during National Chemistry Week. Nineteen kids attended the Picture Perfect Chemistry program on Oct. 23.
- 7. This year's Creature Carnival contest brought in 46 entries, including robots, octopi, alien eyeballs and all manner of fantastical beings that adorned the shelves in the Youth Services Department. Library visitors found the creatures a timely complement to the Halloween season, with 157 patrons casting ballots for a People's Choice Award.

- 8. The library's first Puzzle-Rama drew nine teams of four to compete for bragging rights and tasty prizes. Teams had two hours to complete a 1,000-piece puzzle. There were smiles all around as teams pieced together not only their puzzle, but a fun afternoon built on camaraderie and a common interest.
- 9. Librarians Michael McArthur and Sarah Read presented the Great Reads of 2024 to Learning in Retirement at Evergreen on Nov. 13. A full house of about 50 people sat in rapt attention as the pair shared their picks for noteworthy books from the past year. One attendee was at the library no more than an hour after the program, booklist in hand, to place a title on hold that was recommended!
- 10. Job seekers had the opportunity to speak with representatives from 10 local employers during the latest Mini Job Fair at the library. An ongoing partnership with the State Department of Workforce Development and Fox Valley Job Center-Menasha, the Nov. 13 event drew 44 people. The events have become an effective way for job seekers to learn about area employment opportunities, with at least two more sessions planned for 2025. The events were even called out by a member of the City Council as a valuable service for the community.

Library Director's Report

October-November 2024

Since the regular Board meeting of October 31, library staff and I have been at work on the following:

- Kiwanis Talk—On Friday, November 1, I spoke to the morning Kiwanis club about the rebranding and the hoped-for positive and community-engaged future of the Oshkosh Public Library.
- ARPA Projects—The digital signage install work was interrupted by the election and some work remains to be done. As of this writing, we are waiting to hear back on a final completion date.
- Polling Site —On November 5, 1,280 people voted at the Oshkosh Public Library, according to poll workers who were on site. Two of those poll workers were library employees Sandra Toland and Michael McArthur, who helped keep long lines comfortably moving despite high turnout.
- Pay Plan Discussion—On November 6, I met with Michelle Behnke, Head of City HR to discuss the library's salary matrix for 2025. At the meeting, we discussed the possibility of aligning library pay grades with the City's for ease of administration. Ms. Behnke will share a proposal with me in coming weeks for discussion at the December Board meeting.
- 2025 Budget—At the November 12 meeting of Common Council, the Council passed the proposed 2025 City budget.
- Leadership Oshkosh—On November 13, I attended the day-long "Local Government" day as part of the Chamber's Leadership Oshkosh Program. We discussed the funding, departments and various services of the City government, as well as took part in a mock Council meeting. The day closed with a tour of the fire department's Station 17.
- Library Roof—On November 14, Facilities Maintenance Engineer Randy Schneider and I met with a representative of Kaschak Roofing to discuss a discovered minor leak in a part of the Waters Building roof not previously remediated. As of this writing, I await a plan for repair from Kaschak and representatives of the City.
- WALC Agreement—On November 15, I met with Dr. Chu May Paing, Executive Director of the Winnebago Area Literacy Council to review an updated agreement between the Library and the Literacy Council, I expect to have a copy for Board review and vote at the December meeting.
- City Manager Selection—On Monday, November 18, from 6-8pm, there will be a meet and greet for the public to meet City Manager candidates. This will be taking place at the Oshkosh Convention Center. The next day, I will be part of a day-long interview process with the candidates. I will report further in person at this meeting of the Board.

Respectfully Submitted,

Darryl Eschete
